

NEW MEXICO

New Mexico voters will head to the polls to select a new governor as current governor Michelle Lujan Grisham (D) is term limited. Voters will also select a lieutenant governor, attorney general, and treasurer. All 70 state house seats are also up for election. Democrats are expected to maintain control of the executive offices and the house.

Attorney General

Republican Nominee

Sam Kane

Samuel “Sam” Kane is a seasoned attorney and has worked as a personal injury attorney at his own firm, Kane Law Firm, for more than 20 years.

Kane casts himself as a constitutional conservative focused on public safety. He favors targeted crime reduction that combats specific crimes causing the most harms, specifically naming the influx of Methamphetamine and Fentanyl. He also wants to strengthen relationships with law enforcement and ensure that they are properly trained and equipped to address crime. Kane also calls to expand programing to at-risk youth to prevent criminal activity in the future.

Kane is also a staunch advocate for preserving the state’s land and natural resources. He favors responsible economic growth, indicating that a balance must be struck between economic development and environmental protections to ensure businesses do not pose a risk to natural resources.

Trivia: Kane is an avid cyclist and also holds a pilot license.
