

VERMONT

Voters in the Green Mountain State will head to the polls to select their choice for governor, attorney general, and treasurer. All 30 state senate seats and all 150 state house seats are also on the ballot. Governor Phil Scott (R) has maintained steadfast support among both Republicans and Democrats and is expected to secure a sixth two-year term in office while the state legislature will likely remain under Democratic control.

Attorney General

Democratic Nominee

Attorney General Charity Clark

Charity Clark was first elected attorney general in 2022 and was re-elected to a second term in 2024. She began her career at private practices in Vermont and New York before she joined the Vermont Attorney General's Office as an assistant attorney general in the public protection division under former Attorney General William Sorrell (D). She later served as chief of staff to former Attorney General T.J. Donovan (D) from 2018 to 2022.

Clark has sued the Trump administration 63 times to date, blocking dozens of illegal and unconstitutional actions by the federal government. In August 2026, she joined two lawsuits against the Trump Administration for demanding production of a database of state-owned records containing personal sensitive information of millions of commercial drivers and for threatening to terminate more than $10 million in federal funding to the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators if states refuse to disclose this data.

Protecting consumers has been the centerpiece of her platform, investigating environmental polluters, suing pharmacy benefit managers for illegally driving up the costs of prescription drugs, and bringing cases against Meta and TikTok for the harms caused to children by their platforms.

Clark is currently leading the development of the Age-Appropriate Design Code administrative rules. If reelected, she will play a large role in the implementation and enforcement of these rules.

Clark frames herself as a staunch supporter of women's healthcare, joining a coalition of attorneys general to challenge a ban on the abortion drug mifepristone.

Trivia: Charity Clark is an avid skier and hiker, completing the Long Trail in 2021. She is now skiing her way through the Catamount Trail.
