Attorney General

Democratic Nominee

Chris Mann

Chris Mann began his career in law enforcement, becoming a police officer at age 21 while attending the University of Kansas. His police career ended in 2002 after he was struck by a drunk driver during a traffic stop. He subsequently earned his law degree from Washburn University and became a prosecutor with the Wyandotte County District Attorney's Office.

Mann later served as a prosecutor for the Kansas Securities Commission, where he focused on protecting consumers and seniors from white-collar criminals. In 2016, he founded Mann Law Firm, where he has primarily represented victims of drunk driving and their families.

Mann's campaign emphasizes defending the Constitution, protecting the rule of law, keeping families safe, combating fraud and supporting local law enforcement.

Mann has pledged to support local and state law enforcement to expand efforts to address the state's drug crisis. He supports having Naloxone readily available in all communities and strengthening prevention and treatment programs.

Mann has vowed to address unregulated online AI chatbots by working with the legislature on proposals to enhance protections for children's online safety.

Trivia: Mann was the Democratic nominee in 2022 and lost the general election to his 2026 opponent, Attorney General Kris Kobach.
