

ARIZONA

Voters in Arizona will elect a governor, Lt. governor, attorney general, and treasurer. All executive races are considered to be competitive. All 30 state senate seats and all 60 state house seats are up for reelection. Republicans currently hold narrow majorities in both chambers. Democrats are targeting the legislature in an effort to gain control of one or both chambers, making Arizona one of the key state legislative battlegrounds in 2026.

Treasurer

Republican Nominee

Elijah Norton

Elijah Norton is a businessman with experience in finance, insurance, and organizational management. His companies, which are headquartered in Arizona, operate across the finance and insurance industries and have served more than six million customers.

Norton also served as Treasurer of the Arizona Republican Party during the 2024 election cycle, where he oversaw the party's finances and conducted an audit that he says uncovered significant waste.

Norton has also positioned himself as a check on Governor Katie Hobbs (D) and her administration's financial policies. Norton has pledged to make the Treasurer's Office a watchdog over taxpayer dollars focusing on investigating fraud, and to work with the Auditor General and legislature on what he calls "Arizona's Audit," a comprehensive review of state government spending.

He also supports protecting state investments from what he characterizes as "woke" ideology, expanding school choice and parental educational freedom, and ensuring Arizona tax dollars are not invested in companies that divest from Israel.

Trivia: Norton started his first business with just $1,000 in savings after college.
