

RHODE ISLAND

Rhode Islanders will head to the polls to select their choice for governor, attorney general, and treasurer. Additionally, all 38 senate seats and all 75 house seats are up for election. Democrats are expected to maintain control of the executive office and legislative chambers. Former CVS executive Helena Foulkes defeated incumbent Governor Daniel McKee in the Democratic primary, effectively guaranteeing her position as the new governor.

Attorney General

Republican Nominee

Micholas Credle

Micholas Credle is an army retiree who served as a First Lieutenant assigned to the US Army Central Command. He has also held multiple positions at the US Military Academy at West Point and the US Army Forces Command. He currently serves as Chairman of the Board and President of the Pyramid Club in Newport, Rhode Island.

Credle's campaign priorities include protecting pensions, safeguarding taxpayer dollars, and restoring trust in how Rhode Island manages its resources.

Credle has criticized the RI AnchorHome Program for exhausting $80 million in state funds, while only supporting 89 low interest mortgages. He proposes to instead use this $80 million to build approximately 320 new homes priced at $250,000 each.

Credle supports expanding Trump Accounts to provide families with a tax-free investment in their child's future.

Trivia: Micholas Credle holds a Master of Business Administration and a master's degree in information science from North Carolina Central University. He also holds a master's degree in human resources management from Webster University.
