

ARIZONA

Voters in Arizona will elect a governor, Lt. governor, attorney general, and treasurer. All executive races are considered to be competitive. All 30 state senate seats and all 60 state house seats are up for reelection. Republicans currently hold narrow majorities in both chambers. Democrats are targeting the legislature in an effort to gain control of one or both chambers, making Arizona one of the key state legislative battlegrounds in 2026.

Treasurer

Democratic Nominee

Nick Mansour

Nick Mansour is an entrepreneur and businessman, working across finance, emergency support services, and education. Most recently, he served as Chairman and CEO of Arizona College of Nursing, growing the institution from a single campus into a national nursing school with 24 campuses across 14 states.

Mansour is a third-generation Arizonan who was raised in Tucson and now lives in Phoenix. He earned a degree in industrial engineering and an MBA from Stanford University.

Mansour's campaign casts him as an "independent watchdog" for Arizona and emphasizes responsible management of taxpayer dollars. He pledges to prioritize investments in education to prepare Arizonans for future economic opportunities, while also working to eliminate waste, invest state funds responsibly, and return money to taxpayers.

His campaign highlights his background as an entrepreneur and his experience building a nursing school that helped address Arizona's nursing shortage as evidence of his focus on creating practical, mutually beneficial solutions for the state.

Trivia: Mansour says he decided to pursue public service after surviving a 10-hour surgery during a serious health scare, which led him to reflect on how he wanted to use his success to help others.
